Gendered Approaches to Spatial Development in Europe

Perspectives, Similarities, Differences

Edited by Barbara Zibell, Doris Damyanovic and Ulrike Sturm

Series: Routledge Studies in Gender and Environments

Beginning with an introduction to theories and concepts of gender, space and development, the book includes a brief comparison of national perspectives, as well as a critical reflection of contradictions in approaches to gender in planning practice. This is followed by a transnational discussion of planning practices on selected themes: gender-sensitivity in urban development concepts, gender-sensitive evaluation of grass-roots initiatives, and international gender mainstreaming policies on the New Urban Agenda. Finally, it raises contemporary issues and challenges and presents suggestions for further research on gender issues in sustainable spatial development.
